BYTE HACKS

An all-female hackathon

What is it?

ByteHacks is a 24-hour hackathon on June 24th and 25th that encourages women of all ages and skillsets to form teams and create tech projects that have positive social impact.

The hackathon will have beginner workshops, tech talks, mentors, sponsors, prizes, and free food! We hope you join us in making ByteHacks possible.

Who can come?

The purpose of the event is to bring together women from diverse backgrounds, so all female-identifying students are welcome. This includes college students and high schoolers.

Designers, entrepreneurs, artists, and developers are all invited. Participants will form teams of up to 4 people to work on their projects.

Where?

We are currently looking for a tech venue in New York City to host ByteHacks in June. We are expecting 100-150 attendees, but this number is flexible based on the venue's size.

We will provide food, hardware, supplies, and everything else necessary to run the event. All we need now is a venue! Contact us if you are interested.

Who we are

ByteHacks is run by Girls Make Apps, a national nonprofit devoted to improving tech education for women everywhere. We are a group of passionate individuals working to bring others the opportunities we have been fortunate to have. Please contact girlsmakeapps@gmail.com if you are interesting in sponsoring or donating to the cause.

Contact

Questions? Concerns? Want to help? Please contact the team at girlsmakeapps@gmail.com or talk to our CEO Akshaya Dinesh at akshayadinesh19@gmail.com. We can provide more information on sponsorship tiers, recruiting opportunities, and more. Please help us make ByteHacks the best event it can be!